

Openlands Annual Luncheon

Thursday, October 31, 2019

The Openlands Annual Luncheon is the largest gathering of the conservation community in the greater Chicago region. It is the only fundraising event for Openlands each year. Nearly 1,000 guests attend annually, including business and nonprofit executives, elected officials and civic leaders.

Hilton Chicago

720 S. Michigan Avenue

10:30am to Noon: Networking Reception, Noon to 1:30pm: Lunch and Program

2019 KEYNOTE SPEAKER: WENDY PAULSON

A long-time member of the Openlands Board of Directors, Wendy Paulson is an environmental educator and activist with decades of hands-on experience in nature-based education, habitat restoration, and community-based conservation.

She has dedicated much of her life to teaching, beginning in the Boston Public Schools and later at The Potomac School in McLean, VA, in the Barrington Public Schools as “The Nature Lady,” and as Director of Education for Citizens for Conservation, a community conservation group in Barrington.

She helped start and teaches for Birds in my Neighborhood, a program of Openlands and Audubon Great Lakes in the Chicago Public Schools, and Lake and McHenry Counties.

Paulson is Chairman of the Bobolink Foundation and has held leadership positions with international conservation organizations including Rare, the Illinois, New York and global boards of The Nature Conservancy, BirdLife International, as well as with many national and local groups.

Through her varied conservation experiences, she has come to see the central importance of an engaged constituency for nature and believes that empowered volunteer leaders are nature’s ultimate sustainability plan.

2019 CONSERVATION LEADERSHIP AWARD RECIPIENT: STEPHEN PACKARD

Openlands is proud to present the 2019 Conservation Leadership Award to Stephen Packard for his commitment to fostering a culture of conservation through which people and nature can re-establish mutually nourishing relationships in a changing world.

Over 40 years ago, Stephen Packard initiated the North Branch Restoration Project, which has become a world-renowned model of volunteerism. Packard is the former Director of Science and Stewardship for the Illinois Nature Conservancy and Founding Director of Audubon Chicago Region. He initiated and guided the Volunteer Stewardship Network. With thousands of volunteers working at hundreds of sites, these collaborations served as models for the creation of similar projects that are now commonplace at varied organizations.
